Official admits fault in pushing seniors out

The Saskatoon Health Region says it is taking full responsibility for only giving residents of a seniors home in Humboldt eight days to move out.

Health region president Maura Davies says in hindsight they should have given the seniors who lived at St. Mary's Villa more time to prepare for the February move.

Her comments followed a report by Saskatchewan's Ombudsman which said the 10 seniors, with an average age of 89, were treated unfairly.

SAHO, cancer agency try to avoid strike

Representatives from the Saskatchewan Association of Health Organizations (SAHO) and Saskatchewan Cancer Agency met in Regina this week to try to avoid strike action.

While Regina meetings wrapped up Thursday, a Saskatchewan Government and General Employee's Union (SGEU) spokesperson says discussions are ongoing.

"We are continuing to work towards a resolution and are agreeing to meet as needed," said Susan Dusel with the SGEU.

Bernie Young, vice-president of labour relations for SAHO, told Metro Regina Thursday no negotiations are scheduled for next week. Earlier this year, Saskatchewan Cancer Agency members rejected an offer from SAHO, with 78 per cent of workers voting to reject the offer. METRO iPhone 5 arrives to luke-warm reviews

Too expensive. Some customers say the online price tag of $699 is too high Excitement is in the air as Apple's iPhone 5 hits store shelves in Canada Friday, but not everyone is chomping for a piece of Apple's latest gadget.

Currently available for order on Apple.com for $699, Regina resident James Noll thinks that's a little steep.

"The last iPhone is still new, a couple years old. Cellphone contracts are longer than that," he said. "And it's way too pricey anyway."

Investigation. Alberta health officials looking into E. coli cases

Recall list

- Products. The type of products on the recall list including everything from packaged ground beef and hamburgers to meat loaf, pepperoni, bratwurst and Salisbury steak.
- Retailers. The list includes some of the largest retailers in the country including Sobeys, Co-op, Metro, Foodland, Giant Tiger and several corporate and franchised Loblaws Co.'s stores including Real Canadian Super-store.

Health officials in Alberta say they are investigating five cases of E. coli infections in people, but they are not linking them to an extensive recall of ground beef from major Canadian grocery stores.

Alberta Health Services says four of the infections are in Edmonton and one is in Calgary.

CIV is reporting that a four-year-old Calgary girl has been in Alberta Children's Hospital since Sept. 11.

The report says Sarah Demoskoff's kidneys have failed and she has had two blood transfusions.

The girl's family says doctors told them the case was linked to a beef recall announced on Monday.

The family said Sarah ate prepackaged ground beef patties and became very sick soon after.

Alberta Health Services will not confirm if she is one of the cases they are looking into.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency first warned on Sunday that ground beef from Edmonton-based XL Foods may contain E. coli.

Since then, the list of stores the products were sold in has been expanded several times.

A full list of the stores affected can be found on the food inspection agency's website at inspection.gc.ca

The mayoral election will see major issues, such as infrastructure, become hot campaign topics.

Don Atchison (incumbent)

Building on the idea of a "progressive Saskatoon," incumbent Mayor Don Atchison's election platform consists of updating infrastructure, building relationships with other forms of government and "supporting a balanced growth" of the city.

At his official campaign announcement, Atchison highlighted the city's AAA/stable credit rating from Standard & Poors as a great achievement of his success as mayor during a time of major growth.

While Atchison has been criticized for spending decisions made while acting as the city's mayor, he says that the spending has consisted of tactful "investments" to ensure that positive growth continues.

Atchison also acknowledges that infrastructure is a major issue for the city's residents and said he will continue to improve or expand roadways to keep "infrastructure current."

Atchison was born and raised in Saskatoon, and has worked in his family's retail business Atch & Co. He was first elected to city council in 1994 and as mayor in 2003.

Tom Wolf

As a professional researcher, with a focus on sprayer technology, and policy advisor for the Canadian government, Wolf has been exposed to many aspects of local politics.

In his campaign video, Wolf refers to Saskatoon as the "economic engine of Saskatchewan," and says that the city needs to prepare itself for "a very different future."

Wolf is critical of incumbent Don Atchison and how he has handled the city's growth. Wolf argues that the city has been ignoring existing infrastructure while focusing on new projects that are inappropriately funded.

In his campaign kickoff press conference, Wolf referred to the loss of the traffic bridge as a "disgrace," and the result of "years of neglect" from current leadership.

Wolf moved to Saskatoon with his wife nearly 16 years ago. While living here, he has had served the City Park neighbourhood as it's community association president.

Warzone birth comes as surprise to servicewoman

Baby conceived before tour of duty. British soldier stationed in Afghanistan unlikely to face censure

Hours after a British soldier in Afghanistan told medics she was suffering from stomach pains, the Royal Artillery gunner unexpectedly gave birth to a boy — the first child ever born in combat to a member of Britain's armed forces.

Britain's defence ministry said Thursday the soldier told authorities she had not been aware she was pregnant and only consulted doctors on the day that she went into labour.

The soldier, who arrived in Afghanistan in March, delivered the child Tuesday at Camp Bastion, the vast desert camp in southern Afghanistan's Helmand province where Prince Harry is deployed and a Taliban attack last week killed two U.S. Marines.

"Mother and baby are both in a stable condition in the hospital and are receiving the best possible care," the ministry said in a statement. It said a team of doctors would fly out to Afghanistan in the coming days to help the soldier and her son return safely to Britain.

The U.K. does not allow female soldiers to deploy on operation if they are pregnant. Although the soldier's child was conceived before her tour of duty began in March, she is not likely to face censure.

Britain has previously sent female soldiers home from wars after they have fallen pregnant — including about 60 from Afghanistan — but hasn't previously had a servicewoman go into labour in a warzone.

Giving pregnant pause

- Maj. Charles Heyman, a retired officer and author of The British Army Guide, said the unexpected birth would cause some concern at the base.
- "This sort of thing makes life difficult for everyone else, but the important thing is the welfare of the female soldier. This could have gone wrong and we don't know if the attack on Camp Bastion might have forced the birth," said Heyman.
- Heyman said it may have been "that the excitement of the tour masked the symptoms of the pregnancy."

Islamic arts take wing at Louvre

Birth control. Implants, IUDs urged for teen girls

Teenage girls may prefer the pill, the patch or even wishful thinking, but their doctors should be recommending IUDs or hormonal implants — long-lasting and more effective birth control that you don't have to remember to use every time, the leading U.S. gynecologists' group said Thursday.

The IUD and implants are safe and nearly 100 per cent effective at preventing pregnancy, and should be "first-line recommendations," the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists said in updating its guidance for teens.

Both types of contraception are more invasive than the pill, requiring a doctor to put them in place. That, and cost, are probably why the pill is still the most popular form of contra-

PQ makes good on vow to scrap tuition-fee increase

Quebec. Decision comes after 'Maple Spring' that saw student protests erupt across province

The tuition increase that triggered such social strife in Quebec was cancelled Thursday during an action-packed first full day in office for the Parti Québécois government.

The new government repealed the fee hike, by decree, in its first cabinet meeting less than 24 hours after coming to power.

acted on a promise that she had made during the election campaign. She announced the decision at a news conference after the cabinet meeting.

Marois said tuition will go back to $2,168 — the lowest in Canada. With the planned increases, it would have been $600 higher this year and would have kept growing each year.

Marois said she will not decrease funding for universities and will make good on a promise to hold a summit on how to fund universities within her first 100 days as premier.

The government policy entering that meeting will be to suggest indexing future fee increases to the rate of inflation.

That would raise tuition by a rate of around one to three per cent most years — compared with the 84 per cent increase over seven years planned by the previous Charest government.

But Marois' inflation-index policy is not set in stone. Some students are pushing for zero tuition, as exists in some other countries. THE CANADIAN PRESS

American war resister turns herself over to U.S. authorities

Kimberly Rivera. Soldier who lived in Toronto came to Canada in 2007 to avoid service

An American soldier who sought refuge in Canada after she became disillusioned with the Iraq war has turned herself over to the United States.

The War Resisters Support Campaign says Kimberly Rivera was immediately arrested, detained and transferred to U.S. military custody after presenting herself at the border.

The group says Rivera is now waiting to be transferred to a different military facility where she faces punishment for being absent from her unit.

It also says Rivera's husband and her four children crossed the border separately so the kids wouldn't have to see their mother being detained.

The secretary to Immigration Minister Jason Kenney has confirmed the deportation and

Amish convicted of hate crimes in brutal hair attacks

Cut off. Religious dispute pitted children against parents; attacks terrorized the normally peaceful settlements

Sixteen Amish men and women were convicted Thursday of hate crimes including forcibly cutting off fellow sect members' beards and hair in a religious dispute that offered a rare and sometimes lurid glimpse into the closed and usually self-regulating community of believers.

A federal jury found

Mastermind

Samuel Mullet Sr. wasn't accused of cutting anyone's hair. But prosecutors said he planned and encouraged his sons and the others, mocked the victims in jail-house phone calls and was given a paper bag stuffed with the hair of one victim.

Samuel Mullet Sr. guilty of orchestrating the cutting of Amish men's beards and women's hair last fall. His followers were found guilty of carrying out the attacks.

Prosecutors and witnesses described how sons pulled their father out of bed and chopped off his beard in the moonlight and how women surrounded their mother-in-law and cut off her hair all the way to the scalp.

All the defendants are members of Mullet's settlement near the West Virginia panhandle. Prosecutors say the defendants targeted hair because it carries spiritual significance.

One bishop told jurors his chest-length beard was chopped to 3.8 centimetres of his chin.

In another attack, a woman testified that her own sons and a daughter cut her hair and her husband's beard.

James Holmes. Batman massacre suspect smiles, but stays quiet in court

The suspect in the U.S. theatre rampage June 20 that killed 12 people in one of the worst mass shootings in the country's history smiled and glanced around the courtroom Thursday, a marked difference from his dazed appearances in the past. The shocking orange hair was gone, but he remained silent.

Prosecutors gave up their fight to see a notebook sent by suspect James Holmes to a psychiatrist. They didn't want to delay the proceedings.

Defence attorneys have said Holmes is mentally ill and that the notebook, sent to Dr. Lynne Fenton, shouldn't be released because of doctor-patient privilege.

Fenton last saw Holmes professionally on June 11 before seeing him again in court on Aug. 30.

Prosecutors argued that the notebook is fair game, saying Holmes planned to be dead or in prison after the shooting rampage and had no plans to undergo therapy.

Fifty-eight people were wounded as the gunman roamed the darkened theatre.

Retail. Reitmans says it can withstand Target's arrival north of border

Women's clothing retailer Reitmans says it's not worried about Target coming to Canada. Chief executive Jeremy Reitman says they've withstood increased competition from U.S. companies before, pointing to Walmart and The Gap.

Reitman says industry observers have previously predicted increased competition would cause the demise of Canada's largest publicly traded apparel company.

But he says Reitmans has done well as the popular U.S. chains have driven traffic to malls and big-box outlets where its retail network operates.

Reitman told a CIBC investor conference in Montreal that "we thank God for Walmart." He adds many of its various retail store brands are located in the same shopping areas. Target will replace Zellers stores, which Reitmans said doesn't generate much traffic.

Like many apparel companies, Reitmans has faced the challenges of a tough economic environment and higher fuel and food prices that reduce discretionary spending on non-essential items.

Its revenues and profits fell in the second quarter and it says that the third quarter will be affected by problems with a new warehouse-management system at its distribution centre that caused two weeks of delays in product shipments to stores.

The computer crashes were harmful but the new system will allow Reitmans to dramatically cut the time to process merchandise and allow it to do so with far fewer employees.

In addition to adding and refurbishing stores, Reitmans has launched an e-commerce business that allows customers to shop online and have products delivered to their homes or the nearest retail store.

Reitmans has 925 stores in Canada, under the Reitmans, Smart Set, RW & CO., Thyme Maternity, Penningtons and Addition Elle banners. It also provides Thyme Maternity apparel and accessories for sale in 160 Babies "R" Us stores in the United States and 18 locations in Canada.

Hockey Night in Canada — NOT. The billionaire owners have locked out the millionaire players, cancelled the pre-season and could cancel the entire season. The rest of us may have to turn to football or soccer ... or get a life.

2 The topless Duchess. Variation on that Hans Christian Andersen tale The Emperor's New Clothes.

Only in this remake the paparazzi invade the Duchess of Cambridge's privacy and her husband the Duke is not even a little amused.

3 Cross-border crossover. Top U.S. retailer Nordstrom brings its shopping experience to Canada, announcing stores in Vancouver, Calgary, Toronto and Montreal. Hopefully, the Competition Bureau won't make the chain lower the quality of its service and jack up the prices so Canadian retailers can compete.

4 As of Friday, your device is obsolete. Apple starts selling the iPhone 5 in Canada on Friday. For $699 you get a phone that's half an inch longer. Doesn't seem like much, but don't tell the two million people who pre-ordered it in the U.S. I guess size still matters.

5 Speaking of size. As of this week, the mayor of N.Y.C. bans any big sugary drink over 16 ounces. Big Gulp banned in the Big Apple, and it's not even Boston. Start spreadin' the news.

6 Then there's Tupelo Honey. Turns out Mississippi is the fattest place in North America, with 34.9 per cent of its citizens considered obese. That's nuthin'. By 2030, after another 18 years of BBQ, 66.7 per cent of adults in the Hospitality State will be obese. I wouldn't get too smug; an estimated 1.6 million Canadian kids are overweight, and the Big Gulp is still freely available on any street corner.

7 This kid's not all right. Consider the case of Maygan Sensenberger, the wife of Sen. Rod Zimmer. She's 23, barely an adult; he's 69, barely sentient. At least, you have to wonder why else he'd marry someone 46 years his junior. Whatever, the honeymoon's over: Thursday, she pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance last month on a Saskatoon-bound flight, while a charge of threatening her husband was withdrawn. Maybe she wanted to go to Miami.

8 Voyager has left the building. In fact, Voyager 1, which was launched from Cape Canaveral 35 years ago, has left the whole damn solar system, the first human-made device to go into deep space, where no one has gone before. Literally. If aliens ever do intercept the Voyager and listen to the music included on board, they'll have to try to figure out a species that listens to Mozart, Stravinsky ... and Blind Willie Johnson.

Mississippi gets an F for fat. The state is the most obese place in North America. GETTY IMAGES

Public-art installation

Whole new world for Columbus

A renowned statue of Christopher Columbus in New York City has its own apartment after it was erected on scaffolding in an art installation by Japanese artist Tatzu Nishi.

The 75-square-metre "living room," complete with sofa, television and coffee table, has been temporarily built around the monument. METRO

Artist's viewpoint

"Obviously, until now, he was up there by himself, alone. So we want to change it into something really homey, warm, domestic-feeling."

Japanese conceptual artist Tatzu Nishi. For 15 years, Nishi has been installing domestic environments around public monuments.

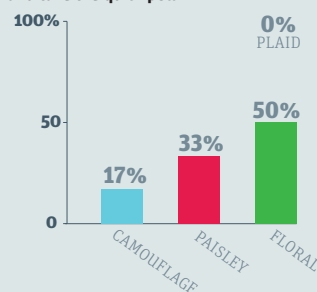

Artwork in detail

- Meaning. "A big point of my work is to change this high level (of the statue) to the same level and you see the sculpture really differently," Nishi told reporters.
- It's upstairs. Installation is accessible via a staircase.
- No more feathers. "After 120 years with only pigeons for company, Columbus is finally getting a taste of the American dream," Public Art Fund's director Nicholas Baume said.

Jake Gyllenhaal stars in End of Watch. HANDOUT

Reel Guys

CROUSE AND
MARK BRESLIN

Make sure you pack Gravel for this 'watch'

Hand-held action.

End of Watch pays homage to gritty crime dramas, but the shaky camera work gives it an artificial feel

Richard: Mark, End of Watch is all build up. The movie spends an hour-and-a-half introducing its characters, giving us a slice of LAPD life before topping it off with an exciting conclusion. I could have used less BarfO-Matic hand-held camera work — sometimes it's hard to tell what's happening — but overall I thought this movie worked because of the naturalistic performances and the climax. You?

Mark: And what performances! Both Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Peña are first-rate, their naturalistic style perfectly matching the you-are-there hand-held camera work. But I also thought the dialogue was far superior to most police thrillers. There's no plot, really — it's a series of episodes in the lives of two LAPD officers, which at times seemed reminiscent of the old TV series Adam 12. But there are things that are shown in this movie that would never have happened in the more benign TV show.

RC: It's true. It took me a while to warm to the episodic nature of the "story." I found the first half-hour stagey. The having-the-character-film-part-of-the-movie thing has been done to death, and I thought added a level of artificiality that didn't need to be there. Take that out and no one would miss it. But once I allowed myself to be drawn into the performances and the chemistry of the leads, I was sucked in. I thought the female characters were given more to do than usual in a cop drama, but just barely. Anna Kendrick is so talented, I would have liked to see her given more to do.

MB: Kendrick barely registered for me; the woman who did was the Hispanic gang leader's significant other. Scary! As far as the ending goes, I thought it was a well-handled climax, but I can't say I didn't see it coming. It's the coda after the climax I thought was unnecessary. It tried to add poignancy to a movie that was thankfully unsentimental throughout.

RC: I agree. It's hard to discuss the end without being spoilerific, but let's say the movie goes from jovial to gritty and then back to jovial again. I didn't love it, but Hollywood seems to be allergic to tragic endings.

MB: Felt like a studio decision

Synopsis

Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Peña play officers Taylor and Zavala, patrol cops in Los Angeles's tough South Central neighbourhood. A routine traffic stop turns into something bigger when they confiscate money and guns from a cartel member. Comedy

Roller Town

Director. Andrew Bush

Stars. Mark Little, Kayla Lorette

Slap-sticked together by Halifax comedy troupe Picnicface, Roller Town is the little indie comedy that could. Not only was it made on a skate-string budget, but the gang decided to spoof the arcane fad of '70s roller-rink films (remember Xanadu?). With plenty of silly gags whirling around a bare plot about a skate king who seeks justice against mobsters trying to kill disco, Roller Town stands out — even if it does lose its wheels by the end.

STEVE GOW

Action

Dredd 3D

Stars. Karl Urban, Olivia Thirlby, Lena Headey

The hard-edged British future-shock comic book (previously adapted with Sly Stallone as a camp-fest in 1995) becomes a hard-core feature courtesy of writer Alex Garland (28 Days Later) and director Pete Travis. Dredd 3D is not for the faint of heart, filled as it is with endless skinning, stabbing, shooting and head crushing all rendered in some beautifully designed 3D sequences. Spare on dialogue, long on style, pulsing music and violence, Dredd 3D is a gift to serious sci-fi action movie fans.

CHRIS ALEXANDER

Drama

Trouble with the Curve

Director. Robert Lorenz

Stars. Clint Eastwood, Amy Adams

Trouble with the Curve is no Moneyball. If anything, it's the antithesis to the acclaimed biopic about using science to shape ball teams. In this, Clint Eastwood is an expired scout that, despite failing eyes and curmudgeonly demeanor, picks players the old-fashioned way — on personality. Too bad there wasn't more personality in the film itself as text-book characters and routine plotting leaves Curve with a sub-par batting average.

STEVE GOW

Horror

House at the End of the Street

Director. Mark Tonderai

Stars. Jennifer Lawrence, Elizabeth Shue, Max Thieriot

House at the End of the Street is notable as actress Jennifer Lawrence's first big screen appearance since her turn in The Hunger Games. Marketed as a supernatural spook show for kids, the film is actually a rock solid, dark and suspenseful thriller armed with further evidence of just how good an actress Lawrence is becoming. Although saddled with a youth friendly PG-13 rating and light on anything visceral, House is actually ample frightening and even disturbing.

CHRIS ALEXANDER

Documentary

Head Games

Director. Steve James

Stars. Christopher Nowinski, Keith Primeau

Although a touch didactic, the documentary Head Games will surely cause you to think twice about signing up your kid for football. While the film makes a convincing argument about the long-term effects of sports injuries (it doesn't take a scientist to know a few blows to the brain is bad for your health) what's more surprising is how slow the sports industry has reacted to the facts. Then again, the film never really offers a solution either.

STEVE GOW

Drama

Compliance

Director. Craig Zobel

Stars. Ann Dowd, Dreama Walker

Craig Zobel's queasy drama about a fast-food restaurant plagued by a perverted crank caller is one of the most pressurized American movies in recent memory. Realistically staged and occasionally difficult to watch, Compliance goes beyond its based-on-a-true-story hook; it's got the shapeliness and finesse of a great thriller.

ADAM NAYMAN

Selena Gomez can sympathize with Dracula's daughter

Growing pains. Young actress who voices character in Hotel Transylvania knows what it's like to have wanderlust

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Being Dracula's daughter can be a drag. That's the lesson Selena Gomez learned making Hotel Transylvania, in which she voices the 118-year-old perpetual teenager Mavis, living in the titular lodging with her overprotective father (voiced by Adam Sandler) and longing to see the world.

Despite her character's advanced age, Gomez didn't have too much trouble connecting with Mavis.

"I'm not 118, but it's fun for me to kind of grow up," she says.

"I want to be able to see places, too. I get to travel and I'm very lucky to get to go to the places that I go to, but I never actually have been to the places alone or with friends, and I've never had that, so I think I'm going through that a little bit, doing things on my own a little bit more and having a little bit of that freedom."

In that travel that she's already doing — for work, mostly — she sees her fair share of hotels herself, though they don't necessarily make much of an impression.

"To be honest, I'm in places for, like, a day so I don't even know where I'm staying. My mom's more about spas, so I just kind of follow my mom," she says.

"We stay in different places all the time — fun ones, cool ones. I've stayed in haunted ones too, before. It was actually for my birthday, so this sounds a little weird, but I like getting scared. We were on tour and they had me stay in a hotel in Utah and it was haunted."

"Nothing happened, so I was a little bummed, but it was spooky being there."

Having gotten her start on the Disney Channel's Wizards of Waverly Place, Gomez clearly has a thing for the supernatur-

Are you ready to get scared this fall?

Jennifer Lawrence stars in House at the End of the Street. HANDOUT

A helping of horror.

As Halloween approaches, the studios put out their most frightful fare — here's what to expect this spooky season

HEIDI PATALANO

Metro World News in New York

Autumn is high season for the year's strongest horror film offerings and this year promises not to disappoint with a few franchise favourites and some gory new stories.

September

House at the End of the Street, September 21

Jennifer Lawrence sheds her plainspoken survival-girl persona from the Hunger Games for this horror film about the new kid in town who befriends a neighbour who is a bit more haunted by his sister's death than the average, run-of-the-mill mourner.

October

Sinister, October 5

Ethan Hawke stars in this spooky caper in which an author finds old 16 mm film in the attic of his new home that gives evidence of the family that was murdered in it years before. Their demise could soon spell his own.

Paranormal Activity 4, October 19

With the Saw franchise dead and buried — for now anyway — it's nice to know we can rely on another film to be made over and over again every year but with slight variations. Thank you, Paranormal Activity 4, for filling that empty, haunted void?

Silent Hill: Revelation 3D, October 26

Stay with us here: this film is the sequel to one of the adaptations of the Playstation 2 game franchise of the same time. The Silent Hill of the title is an alternative universe to which a young girl is drawn in order to learn about her disturbed past.

Metro World News in New York

Here Comes the Boom October 12

If you enjoyed last summer's The Zookeeper (and seriously, shame on you if you did), then you are sure to love the next collaboration from filmmaker Frank Coraci and Adam Sandler's pal Kevin James in Here Comes the Boom.

The Big Wedding October 26

Robert DeNiro, Diane Keaton, Susan Sarandon and Robin Williams star in this comedy about divorcees (DeNiro and Keaton) who must pretend to be married in order to satisfy their son's future in-laws.

Fun Size October 26

It's not often that Halloween acts as the backdrop to anything other than a horror film, but this comedy starring Johnny Knoxville and Chelsea Handler shows what can go wrong at a Halloween party besides stabby mask-wearing freaks making an appearance. A girl might want to attend a Halloween party put on by a boy, and maybe those plans will get thwarted by a strange little brother. And this brother is no Michael Myers.

Stars share their Emmy-day RXs

Attending the Emmy Awards as a nominee is the kind of heady experience that sends even veteran actors' and show-runners' tummies aflutter. But, of course, the show must go on. Stars say they turn to booze, tunes and deep breaths to prepare for such moments. Here's what some of this year's nominees would prescribe for a case of Emmy-day nerves on Sunday.

"Actors, the thing is, we're used to getting nervous. That's sort of our thing. You get nervous and you know how to get through it. Otherwise, we wouldn't be able to go on stage or shoot.... I would say if I'm nervous, I would just drink a glass of water and take a deep breath."

Max Greenfield, New Girl

"A case of presence. Yes. Not 'presents.' Presence. Yes, we want to bring ourselves into the present moment and say, 'Hey! Look at this. Look what's happening. Let's be grateful for this moment and take it all in.' You know what I mean?"

Guest-star dream roles

While these stars have earned repeat Emmy nods for their regular gigs, that doesn't mean they don't have their eye on some sweet guest-star work. Producers, take note: Here's a look at the shows these nominees would love to try.

A devil of a deal

Finding the perfect Manhattan rental is about as easy as making your wildest dreams come true. Residents at The Drake get both — for a price — on 666 Park Avenue, which premieres Sunday, Sept. 30, on Citytv

AMBER RAY

Metro World News in New York

Tenants at The Drake really need to start paying more attention to the fine print on their leases. Sure, the address is great, but signing away your soul is a commitment that's difficult to negotiate your way out of on ABC's new supernatural drama, 666 Park Avenue.

The Drake owner Gavin Doran and his wife, Olivia, take special interest in the aspirations of their tenants, particularly those of new building managers Henry Martin and his girlfriend, Jane Van Veen. Before evil forces evict them, meet the new neighbours.

Gavin Doran, owner of The Drake

Is Gavin a representation of the devil? Terry O'Quinn has an interesting take on his self-interested, wicked character. "My theory is that Gavin's kind of a sharecropper on the plantation of evil," the actor says. "He plants the seeds. He only gets half the harvest. He has to feed some back to the building, but he gets his share and he uses people to his own ends." As for the existence of evil in the real world and people's abilities to indulge in deplorable behavior, O'Quinn — who has played his share of bad guys onscreen — believes "it's in (the human) colour wheel. Just depends on how strong it is in yours."

Olivia Doran, wife of Gavin

When Vanessa Williams first read the 666 Park Avenue script, she immediately likened the wealthy real estate icon Gavin to notorious Ponzi schemer Bernie Madoff. "(The Madoffs) had incredible land holdings all over that people knew about and they had a great amount of wealth. And then we all saw the dark side." As for the well-appointed Olivia, Williams says she views her character as "kind of like a mafia wife, where (Gavin) has supreme power. She is aware of a lot of things that happen that are unfortunate. She doesn't know everything in all the details, but she is aware of the makings of what goes on at The Drake."

Henry Martin, The Drake co-manager

Freshly transplanted from the Midwest, Henry and Jane's eagerness for the promise of New York City may be their downfall. "There's a reason why they moved to New York, and that's their ambition," Dave Annable says. "And I think that Henry and Gavin, their storylines will intertwine. Gavin takes Henry under his wing. I'm very curious to see how that's going to affect Henry and Jane's relationship over the course of the season."

Jane Van Veen, The Drake co-manager

New to New York herself, Rachael Taylor relates to the allure of The Drake. "I just looked for an apartment in New York City and it was really distressing," she admits. As for what happens after Jane and Henry move in, Taylor says the show strives to keep all of the scary supernatural stuff as grounded as possible. "If you have an instinct that something is a little bit creepy-deepy, you will rationally try and resist that as long as you can, because no one wants to really believe that there's a ghost in their basement," she says.

Which sitcom is for you?

Fall TV. Television is crowded with comedy this fall. Thanks to our handy flowchart, DVR overload is a thing of the past. To start, choose whether you prefer the company of friends or family

Metro World News in New York

Go On

Matthew Perry stars as a recently widowed sportscaster who finds wacky but loving new friends in a grief support group. Now airing Wednesdays on Global.

The New Normal

Every family has a little crazy in it. The loose screw comes in the form of a bigoted grandma (Ellen Barkin) in this sitcom. A committed gay couple (Andrew Rannells and Justin Bartha) hiring a single mom (Georgia King) to carry their child may seem untraditional, but their situation is full of love (and some biting funny moments) regardless. Airs Tuesday on CTV.

Ben and Kate

Slacker Ben (Nat Faxon) and frazzled single mom Kate (Dakota Johnson) are odd couple/best friend siblings who become roommates when perennial couch surfer Ben moves in for good. Their affectionately antagonistic relationship will ring true if you grew up close to a brother or sister you also wanted to strangle. Premieres Tuesday, Citytv.

New Girl

As Jess' (Zoe Deschanel) "adorkable" factor was toned down and focus was put on her friendship with her male roommates (Max Greenfield, Jake Johnson and Lamorne Morris, who proved just as capable playing goofy as their female counterpart), New Girl grew to become last season's best buddy comedy — complete with a drinking game, True American. Premieres Tuesday, Citytv.

The Mindy Project

The reasons we fell in love with New Girl apply here — Mindy (Mindy Kaling), an OBGYN who doesn't look like she's moonlighting as a runway model, is successful in her professional life but a total failure when it comes to love. A vet of The Office, Kaling brings optimism to the most cynical comedy — the New York City dating scene — even if she does resort to taking advice from a toy. Premieres Tuesday, Citytv.

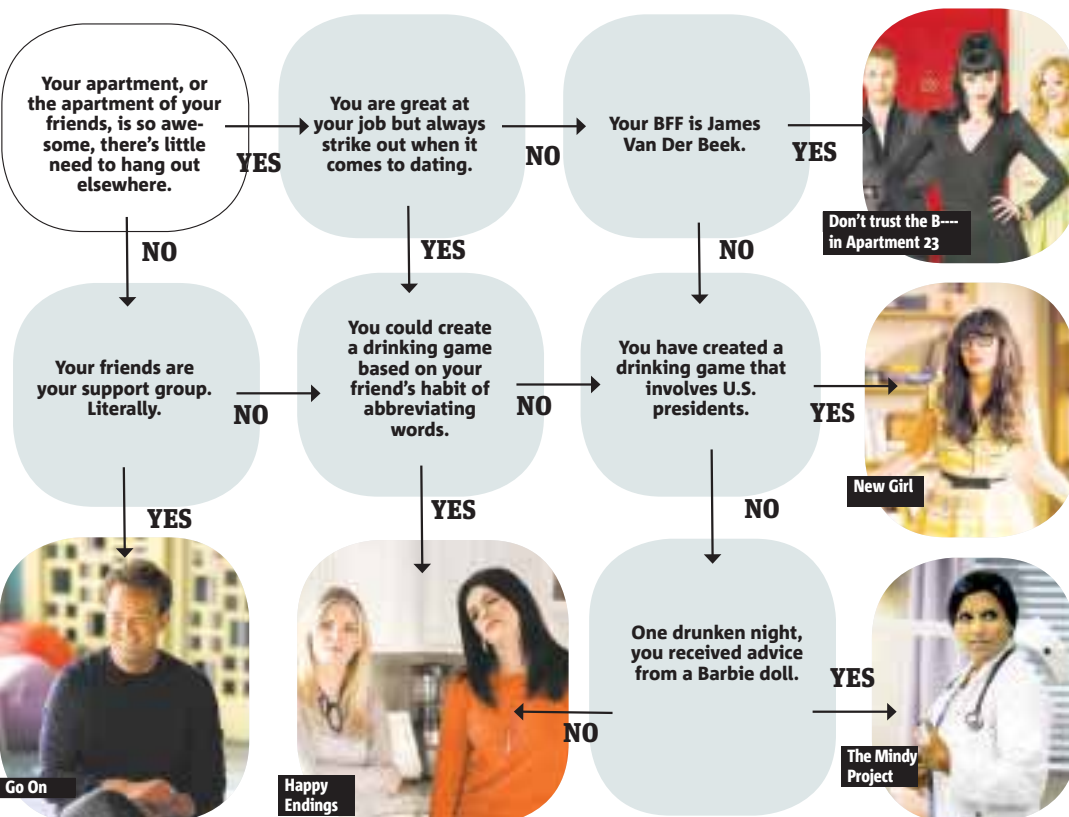

Raising Hope

The Chance family (Cloris Leachman, Martha Plimpton, Garret Dillahunt, Lucas Neff) thrives on chaos. Though the show often hits on white-trash humour, what the family lacks in funds — or smarts — they make up for in heart. Premieres Oct. 2, Citytv.

Don't Trust the B---- in Apartment 23

If it weren't for con artist Chloe's (Krysten Ritter) loyalty to equally egotistic pal James Van Der Beek (playing a heightened version of himself) or admiration for new roomie June (Dreama Walker) who lost her big-time NYC gig but won't let the city get her down, Chloe really would be a queen B. Premieres Oct. 22, Citytv.

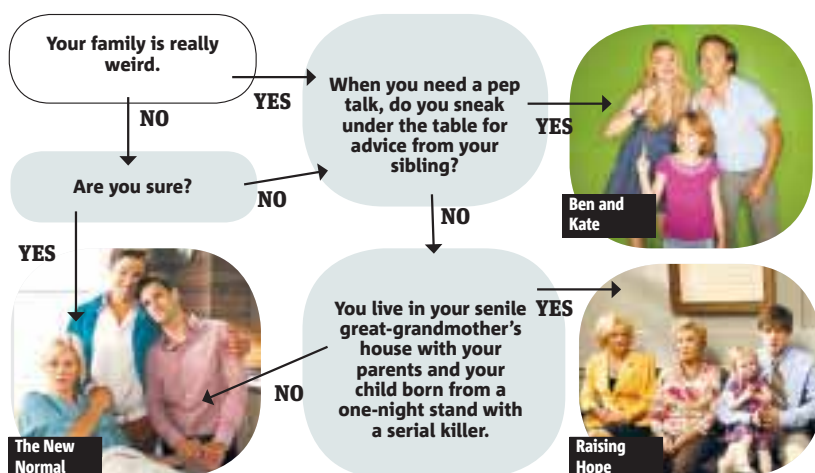

If you prefer to hang out with friends...

Also new on ...

- Vegas. Dennis Quaid plays reluctant lawman Ralph Lamb, based on a real-life sheriff who tried to clean up Vegas in the 1960s. Standing in Quaid's way is Michael Chiklis, who plays the gangster archetype with roguish delight. Premieres Tuesday, Global.
- Emily Owens, M.D. Mami Gummer scrubs in as a doctor whose worst nightmare comes true — the social hierarchy at her Denver hospital — is just like high school. Premieres Oct. 16, CTV Two.

Holmes having trouble controlling Suri post-divorce

Katie Holmes' split from Tom Cruise has not been easy on her six-year-old daughter, Suri, a friend of the actress tells Us Weekly.

"She said the divorce has been hard on Suri and she's acting out," the source says, adding that Holmes is determined to not indulge the girl's every wish just to appease her.

"Katie says no to some things, but gives a little leeway. She knows Tom is going to spoil her."

Amanda Bynes takes on drunk driving rumours

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Amanda Bynes may be making headlines regularly for her troubles behind the wheel and her increasingly erratic behaviour, but the actress herself is "doing amazing," she tells People magazine during a phone call this week.

"I am retired as an actor. I am moving to New York to launch my career. I am going to do a fashion line," she says.

"I am not talking about being arrested for DUI because I don't drink, and I don't drink and drive. It is all false."

But while the former Nickelodeon star herself may think everything's fine, her nearest and dearest aren't so confident.

"People around Amanda are really concerned about her," a source tells the magazine. "She tells people she doesn't party or drink. She doesn't realize she has a problem."

And her behaviour is getting even weirder.

On Tuesday night, she was kicked out of a spin class at her L.A. gym, per TMZ.

Apparently, the class had started but Bynes stopped cycling and started wandering around the class. Once she found another bike, she hopped aboard but then took off her shirt, revealing a "tiny black strapless push up bra ... not a sports bra," says a witness.

She cycled a bit more and then stopped to apply make-up for a full 10 minutes before the instructor threw her out.

This is sad. All of these stories on Bynes' increasingly weird behaviour reminds me of Brittany Murphy — and we all know how that turned out.

Dax Shepard

Shepard opens up about drug abuse

Dax Shepard admits his wild past was a bit much for fiancée Kristen Bell when they first met.

"All the things I'd done were terrifying to her, and she had a hard time believing I would ever be able to stay married and monogamous and a father and all those things. For the first year and a half we were together that was what we battled over almost weekly," he tells Playboy magazine in a candid interview. "I just loved to get f—ed-up — drinking, cocaine, opiates, marijuana, diet pills, pain pills, everything. Mostly my love was Jack Daniel's and cocaine."

Monica Lewinsky

Lewinsky cashes in on sexy letters

Fourteen years after revelations of her affair with Bill Clinton rocked the White House, Monica Lewinsky is reportedly telling all with the publication of her love letters to the then-president, according to Page Six.

The former White House

intern was paid $12 million for the letters, sources say.

"In them, she opened her heart about her love for Bill and how much happier she could make him," a source says.

"Some of what she wrote was so raw that she never sent them."

This is one of the most beautiful and delicious recipes to serve. Use a variety of coloured tortillas to make it even more spectacular. When this dish is cut open to expose the tomato sauce, vegetables and cheese, it looks amazing.

1. Preheat oven to 350 F. Lightly coat a 9-inch springform pan with cooking spray.

2. Lightly coat a non-stick saucepan with vegetable oil and set over medium heat. Add the corn and sauté, stirring often, for about 8 minutes or until slightly charred. Set aside.

3. Add oil to saucepan and keep over medium heat. Add the onion and garlic and cook for 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in the red and green peppers. Cook for 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in the tomato sauce, charred corn, basil, chili powder and cumin. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes or until slightly thickened. Remove from the heat.

4. Place the chickpeas in a bowl and mash them roughly with a fork. Add to the vegetable mixture and stir to combine.

5. In a separate bowl, combine ricotta, mozzarella and cheddar cheeses (but reserve 1/4 cup of the cheddar for garnish). Add the milk and salt and pepper and stir until well combined.

6. Place a tortilla in the prepared springform pan. Spread with one quarter of the vegetable-chickpea mixture. Sprinkle with one quarter of the cheese mixture. Repeat the layers 3 times. Top with the final tortilla and sprinkle with the remaining cheddar cheese and the Parmesan cheese. Cover the pan tightly with foil.

7. Bake for 20 minutes in the preheated oven, then uncovered for 10 minutes or until it is completely heated through and the cheese has melted. Cut into 8 wedges with a sharp knife.

Your guide to oyster-friendly wine

When you grow up in Nova Scotia, you quickly come to realize that a few things are pretty much a given. 1) You must own Anne Murray's Greatest Hits. 2) Even on a bad day, you have to be friendly to tourists. 3) You're born with a love of fresh seafood.

As a bluenoser, I was brought up on more than just lobster. Scallops and mussels were a menu regular at my house. Sadly, the one mollusk that eluded me as a kid was oyster.

Now that I can eat what I want, I like nothing better than to shuck my way through a dozen or so of our country's amazing oyster output over a glass of one of the many wines that pair so well with them.

If you're up for the classics, a dry French Chablis, Muscadet or anything with champagne in its name is a marriage made in heaven.

A modern take on the perfect pairing is any vino made from sauvignon blanc. New Zealand makes rock solid versions with the Whitehaven 2010 Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc ($17.99-$19.99), a citrus-infused wonder that plays so well with oysters when both meet in your mouth.

Easy oven-free lasagna

1. In saucepan, combine beef, onion and garlic and brown. Add spaghetti sauce and frozen mixed vegetables; cover and simmer over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until hot, 10 to 15 minutes.

2. Remove from heat; stir in grape tomatoes. Meanwhile, cook lasagna noodles according to package directions. Cut each crosswise into 3 pieces; set aside.

3. In a small bowl, combine ricotta and Parmesan cheeses, salt and pepper.

Ingredients

- 500 g (1 lb) ground beef
- 1 onion, minced
- 1 garlic clove, minced
- 500 ml (2 cups) spaghetti sauce
- 250 ml (1 cup) mixed frozen vegetables
- 500 ml (2 cups) grape tomatoes, halved
- 4 lasagna noodles
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) ricotta cheese
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) grated Parmesan cheese, plus extra for serving
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- Fresh basil, for garnish (optional)

4. Scoop some hot beef mixture onto each of 4 plates and top each with 2 noodle pieces, overlapping. Top each with a spoonful of ricotta mixture, followed by more beef mixture. Repeat noodle, ricotta and beef layers.

provincial rivals

The University of Saskatchewan Huskies kick off against their provincial rivals, the University of Regina Rams, Friday night at Griffiths Stadium.

The two teams are almost neck-and-neck in the Canada Interuniversity Sports rankings as the Huskies currently sit at number seven, while the Rams sit at number nine.

Friday's game will be the only time the two rivals meet during the season. This will be the first time the teams have had only one meeting during the regular season since 2008, when the Huskies ran the Rams, 42-14.

The Huskies and Rams kick off at 7 p.m. Friday night at Griffiths Stadium.

Along side the Huskies, the Saskatoon Hilltops are entering into a grudge match over the weekend — kicking off against their provincial rivals, the Regina Thunder on Saturday in Regina at Mosaic Stadium.

European exodus not all rosy, IIHF head says

NHL lockout. 'Integrity of game' should come before short-term business gains: Fasel

The flow of star players to European teams during the NHL lockout could distort national competitions, International Ice Hockey Federation president Rene Fasel said Thursday.

Fasel told The Associated Press that he balanced the increased attention for European hockey against potential damage to the integrity of leagues, especially if players return to North America mid-season.

"It's questionable how fair it is to the others (teams) and the whole league system," Fasel said by telephone from Tokyo, where the governing body has its congress next week.

"The integrity of the game is, for us, something very important. It's not just business," the world hockey leader said. "We play the game for the hockey fans, but sport should always be No. 1. Sport should also be about fairness to everybody."

Since the lockout started, players have turned to Europe to find playing time and salaries until the stalemate between the league and NHL players' union is resolved.

Fasel said it is good for fans to see stars come home, including two-time MVP Alex Ovechkin to Russian club Dynamo Moscow and New York Islanders captain Mark Streit with Switzerland's best-supported club, Bern.

"That is very positive, there's no doubt," said Fasel, a former Swiss league referee. "Mark Streit never

CFL. D the key as Riders prepare forStampeders

The Saskatchewan Roughriders are looking to their defence for a win Sunday against the Calgary Stampeders.

"Our job is to keep them out of the end zone, our job is to minimize their gains and control the other team's offence," said Riders defensive co-ordinator Richie Hall.

In recent weeks, Riders hype has largely focused on quarterback Darian Durant's health and backup Drew Willy's preparedness. This changed Wednesday when head coach Corey Chamblin made a substantial defensive promise to fans.

"Jon Cornish (Stampeders

running back) better not get over 100 yards rushing. If he does, someone won't be back on that field come next week," he said.

Hall supported the Chamblin guarantee on Thursday.

"We can't allow a football team, especially Calgary, to control us by the run," said Hall. "To be a good defensive team you have to be able to take away their run and make the other team one-dimensional."

Kickoff for the Stamps and Riders showdown is at 2 p.m. on Sunday at Mosaic Stadium.

Mitchell on way to Edmonton

Sadly, what goes around doesn't always come around and B.C. Lion Khalif Mitchell is sounding anything but contrite as he gets ready to face Simeon Rottier and the Eskimos on Saturday. It's a rematch of a July game when Mitchell purposely wrenched Rottier's arm into a mangled mess, receiving a two-game ban.

Glenn keeping Stamps afloat

Jon Cornish has to be the Stamps' nominee for Outstanding Player this season, with 880 yards rushing and a chance to be the first Canadian back to claim the rushing title in more than two decades. That said, imagine where the 7-4 Stamps would be today without backup QB Kevin Glenn.

Cornish not only concern for Riders

Riders coach Corey Chamblin created a stir this week by indicating someone would lose his job if Jon Cornish posts a 100-yard game against the Riders this Sunday in Regina. Cornish rumbled for 159 yards against the Riders a couple of weeks ago, but so much focus on him could open up opportunities for Calgary in other offensive areas.

Round and round in Edmonton

You have to think the Eskimos offence is taking sides in the locker-room as Kavis Reed spins the wheel of fortune to choose his starting quarterback. Reed has announced that former No. 1 pivot Steven Jyles is back in the hotseat after temporarily losing his job to backup Kerry Joseph.

Burke gets tough with lousy club

It's OK for all of us to laugh at the sad-sack Bombers, but head coach Tim Burke has made it painfully clear it's not all right for the players to get their chuckles on the sidelines. Burke was brutally honest in reprimanding his players for lacking maturity and not giving enough effort last weekend in Calgary.

Ticats looking good all around

Hamilton fans have to be hoping that last week's 43-point win over Edmonton was a glimpse of the real Tiger-Cats. Henry Burris and the offence were dominant, while the defence completely shut down the Esks. The Tabbies couldn't wish for a better matchup as they travel to Winnipeg.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20
You may come under a lot of pressure today but you have always been the sort who knows how to raise your game when the heat is on, so you'll do OK. But try not to put any friendships at risk.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21
The only way you are going to get things done, and get them done right, over the next 24 hours is if you do them yourself. Fortunately, with your ruler Venus on good terms with Jupiter, you won't lack enthusiasm.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21
You may be entirely in the right but be wary of starting a feud with someone who may, in the long-term, prove stronger and more ruthless than you. Maybe this time it would be wise to back down.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23
You seemed determined to put yourself to the test, to prove that you have what it takes. But who are you trying to impress: yourself or other people? If it's the latter, you need to change your outlook a little.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23
Because you are trying to do several tasks at once, things have begun to go wrong. But, being the stubborn sort, you refuse to change. Do you really want to end up further away from your goals than when you started?

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Your eagerness to succeed could lead you to show your hand too soon and make it easy for rivals to work out what you are trying to do. Don't tell anyone, not even friends, what they don't need to know.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Avoid petty disputes today. With your ruling planet Venus on good terms with big-hearted Jupiter, the last thing you want is to get caught up in other people's squabbles. Your sights are set on bigger and better things.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You will go over the top in some way today but somehow it will all come right for you — which may be a huge surprise. Both financially and professionally, it seems you can do no wrong at the moment.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Just because other people are going to extremes does not mean you have to do the same. In fact, the planets warn that if you go too far today, in any direction, you will regret it over the weekend. Play it safe.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You don't have to be assertive, or even aggressive, to get what you desire. Venus and Jupiter come together in such a way that you can quite easily persuade others to give it to you. Don't abuse the situation though.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Something unexpected will happen over the next 24 hours and it will be the kind of something you enjoy. Most likely a relationship will move to a higher level. Suddenly you are on the same wavelength.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20
With Jupiter, planet of excess, strong in your chart there is a possibility that you will take the kind of risk that is best avoided. On the other hand, if you don't take a risk how will you progress? It's your choice.
